Provenance

The papers relating to Hélène Kirsova (1910-1962) were offered to the National Gallery of Australia as a cultural gift in 1986 from Peter Bellew (Hélène’s second husband) as a part of the Hélène Kirsova Ballet Archive. This comprised photographs and printed material as well as fifty original set and costume designs. Bellew offered the collection to John McPhee, then senior Curator of Australian Art, during a visit to Paris in July 1986. Due to Bellew’s death in September 1986 the archive did not arrive at the Gallery until May 1987 with the assistance of Bellew’s widow (Gisele Bellew) and son.

Biographical Note

Hélène Kirsova returned to Australia early in 1938 and married the Danish Vice-Consul in Sydney, Erik Fischer. By 1940 she had established a ballet school in Sydney and by 1941 the Kirsova Ballet, the first professional ballet company in Australia. She employed several dancers who had stayed in Australia following one or other of the Ballets Russes tours to Australia, including Tamara Tchinarova and Polish dancers Raisse Kouznetsova, Valery Shaievsky and Edward Sobishevsy. She also gave work to some young Australian dancers who would later have significant careers in Australia including Rachel Cameron, Strelsa Heckelman, Paul Hammond and Peggy Sager.

Kirsova was an important patron of Australian artists, composers and set designers. She commissioned designs for her original ballets from artists such as Loudon Sainthill, Amie Kingston, Alice Danciger and Wolfgang Cardamatis. After the demise of the Kirsova Ballet in 1944 Kirsova kept her school running for a few more years before retiring to Europe in the late 1940s.

The papers hold a significant number of black and white publicity photographs, including some taken by Max Dupain, providing a visual history of the Kirsova Ballet. Some of these are annotated, including names for the dancers. Other material includes theatre programmes, invitations, press clippings and dance magazines collected by Kirsova. These give some insight into her taste and interests in a collection that is quite limited in terms of personal content. There are no letters or diaries to reveal anything about Kirsova’s personality. However the ephemera and magazines in the archive were those chosen and read by Kirsova and reveal something about the artistic and cultural circles in which she moved.

Relationship to the National Gallery of Australia Research Library and other cultural institutions

The Research Library holds art and artist files for Peter Bellew, Max Dupain, Jack Cato, Ballets Russes, Loudon Sainthill, Amie Kingston, Alice Danciger, David Jones Art Gallery and the Ballet Russes.

Other archive collections held in the Research Library collection that relate to the papers of Hélène Kirsova include The papers of Loudon Sainthill, Peter Bellew, Paul Jellard and Costumes and decors of the Diaghilev and De Basil Ballets.

Relationship to the National Gallery of Australia Collection

The papers were part of a larger archive of ballet material in the Australian art collection at the National Gallery of Australia. These include set designs for the stage production Lola Montez (pen and ink, brush and coloured ink on paper) by Donald Friend, posters and costume designs created by Loudon Sainthill including those for the ballet Faust and set designs by Wolfgang Cardamatis and Amy Kingston. These artists are well represented in the Australian art collection.

The NGA also has a collection of costumes from the Ballets Russes which formed part of the 1999 exhibition From Russia with Love: Costumes for the Ballets Russes 1909–1933. Most of these costumes date from an earlier period of the ballet between 1909 and 1933. Hélène Kirsova was a founding member of the Ballets Russes de Monte Carlo in 1932 and the photographs in the collection cover the mid-1930s to 1940s.

Relationship to Other Cultural Institutions

The National Library of Australia’s search service Trove has comprehensive entries for Hélène Kirsova, Ballets Russes Australian Tours, Faust, L’amour sorcier and La Carnaval. In addition, the Australia Dancing website, which was created by the National Library of Australia, can now be accessed through Trove.

The National Library has put together a finding aid of all its Australian Performing Arts Programs and Ephemera (PROMPT) material relating to Kirsova. It also holds oral histories of people who talk about Kirsova including Paul Hammond, Peggy Sager and Tamara Tchinarova.

The State Library of New South Wales holds a Max Dupain archive of photographs and photonegatives. Very little material can be found elsewhere in Australia relating to Hélène Kirsova and her dance company.
